

Conditions for Admission, Entrance Examination and Criteria for Its Evaluation

A fundamental requirement for participation in the admission procedure and acceptance to study is the successful completion of a Master's study programme and the selection of a dissertation topic by the candidate based on an agreement with a potential supervisor.

The admission procedure for all doctoral study programmes involves an interview conducted in English to verify the candidate's knowledge of English at a communicative and professional level. The interview assesses the candidate's ability to address the chosen dissertation topic, including knowledge necessary for the topic (especially expert knowledge of the subject matter, mathematical tools, and statistics), as well as the ability to conduct independent scientific work.

The basis for the admission interview is a motivation letter prepared by the candidate in English, containing:

- Motivation to study,
- A brief description of the chosen dissertation topic and the expected concept of its solution,
- A brief CV of the candidate focusing on the candidate's key qualifications and experience.

According to the Study and Examination Regulations for Students at CTU in Prague, Article 23, paragraph 3, the potential supervisor will participate in the oral part of the admission procedure for candidates accepted for the topic of dissertation proposed by him/her. During the admission examination, the supervisor has the right to veto decisions about the admission of these candidates to study on the topic he proposed. The supervisor's participation in the oral part of the admission procedure is always necessary, i.e. even if the topic of the doctoral thesis is agreed upon in advance.

The Faculty of Transportation Sciences does not announce an alternative date (for the regular date of the admission procedure) for oral and written entrance examinations for doctoral study programmes.
